Foray Newfoundland & Labrador's 2010 Annual Foray

September 10-12, Great Northern Peninsula, headquartered in St. Anthony

Michael Burzynski, Anne Marceau, Jamie Graham, Maria Voitk, Andrus Voitk

The 2010 Annual Foray will take place on the Great Northern Peninsula, with headquarters in St. Anthony. Friday will be devoted to a mycoblitz of the L'Anse aux Meadows National Historic Site, followed by a welcome reception at this UNESCO World Heritage Site. Saturday's forays will be in the surrounding Strait of Belle Isle Ecoregion, both the coastal barrens and forests in sheltered areas like Pistolet Bay Provincial Park. Participants can choose from an array of lectures and workshops covering identification of local mushrooms, advanced mycology, microscopy, mushroom photography (both point and shoot and advanced SLR), collecting edibles, preparation and conservation, mushroom cooking, dyeing fabrics with mushrooms, and growing mushrooms for eating, decoration or interest.

If you are interested in attending this foray, please register early. Our experience has been that the farther away a person lives, the earlier she registers. Participation is limited, and this foray will be announced to a North American audience. The opportunity to explore a stark northern landscape and foray on a World Heritage Site, picking the mushrooms the Vikings picked, is sure to appeal to many from outside our province, so that we expect an overflow of registrations this year.
